Gaming Laboratories International (GLI) Adds Two Leading Consultants To Professional Services Group

Rodney Arsenault and Murray Lee Join GLI's Professional Services Team in Moncton, Canada

LAKEWOOD, NJ and MONCTON, NEW BRUNSWICK, CANADA (February 7, 2012) – Gaming Laboratories International (GLI), the world's leading gaming testing laboratory and technical consultancy, announced today it is expanding its recently created professional services group. Joining the team as Information Systems Auditors are two widely respected consultants, Rodney Arsenault and Murray Lee. Arsenault and Lee will be positioned in GLI's Professional Services offices in Moncton, New Brunswick, Canada.

GLI Canada CEO Salim Adatia said, "I am very pleased with this expansion. Adding Rodney and Murray to our existing talent pool gives us the wider breadth of expertise and knowledge required to optimally service the consultancy demands of our valued clients, both in lottery and in non-gaming areas."

"Bringing Rodney and Murray to the GLI team will add tremendous depth and skill to our growing Professional Services team, in particular as it relates to our Information Systems Security (ISS) audits, and we are thrilled to add them to the team," added GLI Professional Services Group Director Gregory Doucette.

Arsenault comes to GLI with extensive experience in lottery and IT systems. Most recently, he served as Process Improvement & Standards Specialist for the Atlantic Lottery Corporation, where he has also served as Product Approvals and Process Manager. Arsenault also has extensive experience in systems testing and technology analysis. He holds degrees in Electronic Engineering Technology from NBCC Moncton, Business Administration from the University of New Brunswick and Applied Sciences from Cégep de Sainte-Foy, and has earned Gaming Standards Association certification to test GSA standards for video lottery systems and terminals.

Lee is a well-regarded IT security professional, who most recently served as IT Security Coordinator for McCain Foods Limited, where he developed, scheduled and delivered all ISO 27001 Security Management documentation and training awareness for the corporation. Lee also managed the PricewaterhouseCoopers (PWC) control risk environment audits of the corporation. He has also served as IT Instructor/Business Applications/ for CompuCollege in New Brunswick, and was co-founder and Principle Partner of R.E.S. Enterprises, Inc., where he won two major contracts with Canada's Dept. of Defense. He holds degrees in Business/Accounting from the University of Maine and in Economics/Political Science from St. Thomas University.
